Letter from the President

Masterpiece. That is the only word one can use to describe the year we have had. This year wasn't a masterpiece because everything went perfectly. This year was a masterpiece because, despite the challenges and trials we treacherously traversed, we maintained our composure and electrified our culture.

Our mission this year was simple. To create a campus that is a canvas that will allow any undergraduate to paint an undeniably magical experience during their time here at the U. The students were the artists, and Student Government was here to supply them with the resources they needed.

I first want to commend my organization on creating a culture of belonging and family within that could be felt both internally and externally. Student Government's visibility among students was at an all-time high this year. Our door was always open and so were our hearts and minds. The suite was a place of collaboration and comradery. The vibes were immaculate as students from all across the university would grace us with their presence to voice their concerns, seek encouragement, and best of all enjoy fellowship with their representatives. We in SG like to think that this year was the biggest professional party of all time.

Our executive board fired on all cylinders promoting initiatives that would positively affect our campus for years to come. Our Diversity Equity and Inclusion Council, led by Emi Morales, did an excellent job creating a space in which a student from any background felt loved and seen. Our DEI Festival was a monumental landmark event that blessed our students. Our Outreach Committee, led by Kofi Bame and Nataly Levia, pushed past the walls of our office and into the hearts of people. Get to S'Know Us, Study Break, and Destress Fest gave students a true moment of rest and recuperation. They truly reached out to our students. The Campus Liaison Council, led by Samantha Suchsland, ensured the physical well-being of our campus. Our Academic Liaison Council showed up and showed out, working with the Provost and Deans Office to redefine the academic experience for our students. Our ECO Agency, led by Ainsley Hilliard, continues to ensure the safety of our environment through numerous community events. (Seriously there are too many to list go check out their page!) Category 5, led by Rebecca Elia, was the spirit of our school, elevating fan participation to generational levels across all sports. The Elections Commission, run by Lia Mussie, were instrumental in leading fair and focused elections in both the fall and spring. And guess what... no Court! Our Board of Communications, led by Lauren Ferrer, elevated our brand exponentially, giving our organization the credibility it deserves. Our Freshman Leadership Council, led by Angela Ansah, was truly the crème of the crop proving there isn't an age limit on impact. Our External Adviser, Andres Concha, went above and beyond creating two mentorship programs in a year to help further advance the lives of students through professional development and connection. And, What Matters to U, led by Noah Frankel, stood tall in the face of adversity coming through and delivering unbelievable events, with wonderful guests. Well done family, well done.

And that ladies and gentlemen is only a fraction. I encourage you to look through this report and see our year in totality. But now, it is time to be thankful for "now" and be proud of what's next. I am so excited for my friend Roy Carrillo Zamora to write his own story next year. To the 2024-2025 Executive Board: soar high. Know that your presence is not a mistake, and the impact you were destined to have, was written long before you were born. Remember, just when you think you have hit your limit, go to infinity and beyond.

Be blessed, don't stress, know that God is taking care of the rest. And although they may say our passion is insane, let them know, it's great to be a Miami Hurricane.
