For any technology-related concerns, please send an email to helpdesk@adler.edu.

Living in Chicago

Chicago Neighborhoods

Chicago is a city made up of many unique and diverse neighborhoods. Depending on where in the city you live, rent and living costs will vary. For example, those neighborhoods closer to the downtown area and Adler will generally be more expensive. While Adler students live in the city, neighboring suburbs, and even other states, the majority of those students living in the city usually live on the north side and the following areas:

Edgewater: Includes Uptown and Andersonville.

This northside location is cheaper than most others but has both good and bad sections. It is close to the CTA redline, bus services, and the lake. It is considered one of Chicago’s up and coming areas and it is expected to grow safer and more expensive in the coming years. Currently the neighborhoods in the area are undergoing a lot of revitalization and Andersonville especially is known for its shopping, dining, and gay friendly atmosphere. This area is also fairly well known for some of the historic music venues which include the Aragon Ballroom, the Gin Mill, and the Rivera.

Lakeview: Includes Wrigleyville area (near Wrigley Field)

This area of Chicago is very popular with college students, post-college graduates, and young urban professionals. It is easily accessible to multiple lines of transportation though parking can be difficult due to how crowded the area is. This is an area that is a little more expensive but generally very safe and has a wide variety of shops, bars, restaurants, and nightlife. Also in this area is Boystown, a primarily gay community, which boasts a friendly atmosphere, unique shopping, dining, and nightlife. This area can be expensive to live in and parking can be very difficult but it is considered extremely safe.

Lincoln Park

One of the more expensive northside neighborhoods, Lincoln Park is also cleaner, safer and more established than other areas. Partly contributing to this is the presence of DePaul University's main campus in the heart of Lincoln Park. Transportation is easily accessible though parking can be very difficult at times. The neighborhood is populated by college students and professionals. Lincoln Park also offers a wide variety of shopping, dining, and nightlife and is close to the lake, the Lincoln Park Zoo, and the Peggy Notebaert nature museum.

Lincoln Square: Includes North Center, Ravenswood,

One of Chicago's up and coming northside neighborhoods and as a consequence rent is growing more expensive. This area is more family orientated and so offers fewer of the large apartment complexes. It is also close to transportation although it may take up to an hour to reach the Adler campus, using the el, from this location. This neighborhood was originally had German and Hispanic heritage but as the area becomes more populated it is growing more diverse. Close to the Old Town School of Folk Music, dining, and shopping.

Logan Square/Bucktown

Extremely diverse neighborhood made up of families, professionals, and working class individuals. This area has both good and bad parts and while rent is increasing it is still possible to find inexpensive (relatively speaking) housing. There aren't as many dining, shopping, and nightlife opportunities in this area but as the neighborhood changes more of these establishments are opening.

Hyde Park

This neighborhood is located on the south side and surrounds the campus of the University of Chicago. The area is made up of diverse groups and college students but tends to be fairly expensive and some areas can be unsafe.

Near North Side: Includes Old Town, Gold Coast, River West, Streeterville, and River North. This area is more expensive than most but it's close to the Adler school, transportations, and the heart of Chicago shopping, dining, and other attractions. Many of the areas including the Gold Coast and Old Town boast art galleries, designer shopping, and historic buildings.

Rogers Park

This is a northeast neighborhood located close to the lake and Loyola University. The population is extremely diverse with many college students and ethnic groups living in the area. Rent can be fairly inexpensive and parking should not be too difficult unless you are close to Loyola. Some areas may not be as safe as others.

South Loop: Includes Printers Row, Dearborn Park/ Burnham Park

This is another downtown location which is close to school. Rent and parking can be expensive but there are numerous lots for parking and transportation is readily available. As this is considered more of Chicago's business district, there is less dining and nightlife opportunities but it is close to the lake and museums.

West Town: Includes Wicker Park and Ukrainian Village

These neighborhoods vary greatly in their diversity, safety, and rent prices. Wicker Park is considered a hub for the Chicago music and art scene and is becoming trendier by the day. Ukrainian Village is less trendy but is becoming popular so rent may increase.

Please note that before you consider moving anywhere you should always visit the neighborhoods first. You should always consider your style and personal comfort level before choosing an area, especially in concern to the neighborhood atmosphere, how densely populated it is, safety, and area activities. There are also great resources for finding housing information and apartment listings.

Medications

Over the counter medications (OTC's) are medicines that you do not need a prescription (Rx) from a medical doctor to purchase. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) determines whether medicines are prescription or non-prescription. OTC's are considered "safe and effective" to use without a doctor's prescription. Some examples would be Tylenol, Advil, Cough drops, Nyquil, etc. You can find OTC medications at any local drug or grocery stores.

If you are on prescription medication, you need the approval of your physician to purchase the medicine from a store. Please contact your physician for more information on medicines that you are taking. If you don't have insurance, please see our section on Student Health Insurance.

Parking Information:

There is also Attendant parking located next to Adler, hourly rates, cash only.

The Chicago “el” is composed of different lines, each of which is color coded (e.g. the Red Line, etc). The majority of these lines all enter and pass through the Chicago downtown area know as “the Loop.”

Fares

There are a number of ways to pay for your transportation costs. The fare for the CTA depends on the type of payment you use. Currently, the Adler School participates in the CTAs UPASS program. All currently enrolled full-time students are eligible.

CTA transit cards can be purchased at any station and at a number of retail outlets throughout the city such as Jewel grocery stores, Dominick’s grocery stores, Currency Exchanges, etc.

The Chicago Card and the Chicago Card Plus comes with a $5.00 purchase fee and can be bought online, at the CTA, and certain retailers throughout the city.

Cash- $2.25 per ride on bus and rail; exact fare only; no change returned. No transfers issued when paying with cash.	Transit Card- $1.75 on buses; $2.00 at rail stations; transfer for 25 cents. Transfers allow two additional rides within two hours after the first boarding. Also available in 30-day, 7-day, and visitor passes.
Chicago Card-One of the newest fare options. The Chicago Card is a plastic card which allows you to store fares you add at any CTA vending machine. Customers pay $1.75 full fare and 25 cents transfer (pay-per-use). The Chicago Card works on a “touch-and-go” system, by holding it to the “touchpad” at the front of all turnstiles and bus entrances, your fare is automatically deducted.	Chicago Card Plus- The Chicago Card Plus is also a plastic card which “uses an online account-based system in which you can manage your card to best suit your transit needs.” Customers pay $1.75 full fare and 25 cents transfer (pay-per-use) but also have the option of choosing the 30-day fare
